

3.4 The Cross-Reference Charts

The following cross-reference charts show how the Unicode Han ideographic character set maps to several of the source standards. An electronic version of this table is also available from the Unicode Consortium. (See Appendix F for ordering information.)

Each Unicode character is shown with its Unicode value and a representative glyph. There are nine additional fields for each of the primary source character sets. Characters within the compatibility range (U+F900 → U+FAFF) are also found within the main CJK range. Their placement is indicated by the small number beneath their Unicode code point value in the cross-reference charts.
