Newspapers are essential for students and early researchers

Students can explore perspectives across the span of time

- Coverage spans decades for in-depth insights into how stories and perspectives evolved. Search and browse local and regional views, to find people and events where they happen, when they happen — making news coverage the first documentation of history as it unfolds.
- Key source for missing historical information
Newspapers are an excellent record of fine points and facts that are overlooked elsewhere.

ProQuest Historical Newspapers™*

Provide definitive coverage of historical events from more than 70 newspapers dating back to the 18th century. Many titles are current through 2010. Students can experience centuries of history from popular titles including The New York Times, Boston Globe, Chicago Tribune, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, Los Angeles Times, Black Historical Newspapers collection, including Chicago Defender, New York Amsterdam News, and Pittsburgh Courier, among other titles, and international titles such as The Guardian, Globe and Mail, Montreal Gazette, Jerusalem Post and many others. Titles are available in a variety of ways: as individual titles, as collections or in a bundle that you can customize for your needs. New to the historical newspaper portfolio are 33 US State Collections, bringing an additional 123 titles through these collections.
